

WHO WILL BELL THE CAT?

There was one small village. In that village, was a small lane. In that lane, were the muddy houses. In those houses, lived many rats. Those rats would constantly jump here and there

During festivals, people would feed rats laddoos. Hence the rats were very happily staying without any fear

After some days, in that village there came one cat. Seeing so many rats, she decided to stay there

Wow! What a feast

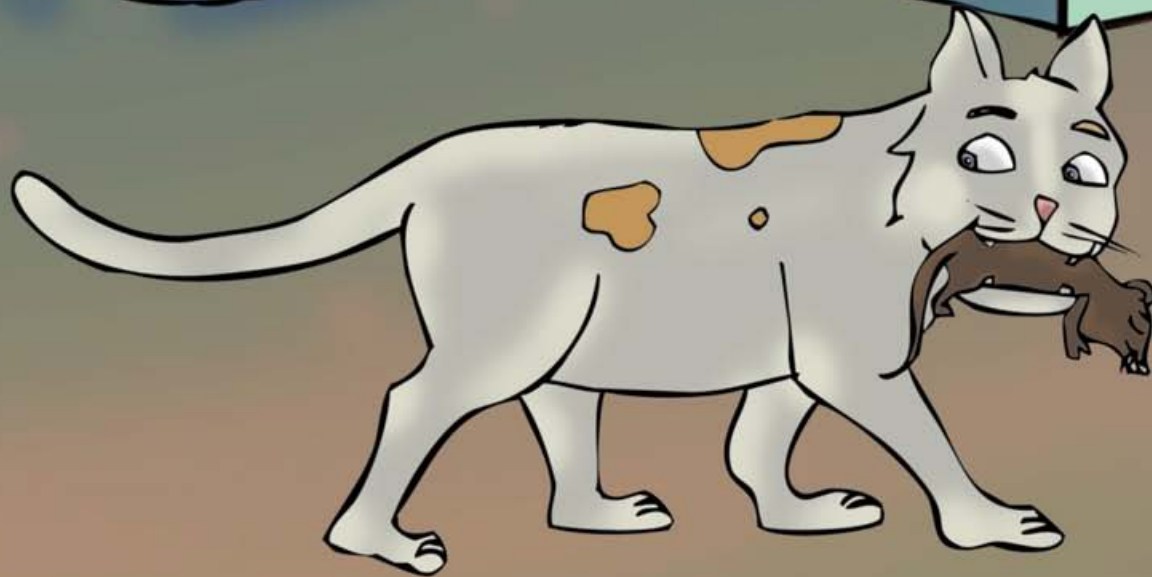

Poor rats were very innocent and the cat was cunning

When the rats were busy eating, the cat would come very silently....

....and kill one rat, hold it in her mouth, run away and eat them

The rats were unaware, from which direction the cat would come and attack them

Gradually the population of rats in that lane reduced

The rats were tense. They wanted to save themselves from the cat and hence they arranged a meeting

How about tying ankle bells around her leg?

But the cat walks so cautiously that none of the ankle bells will tinkle

Another rat said....

Instead of tying ankle bells around feet, how about tying a bell around her neck? As she will walk, looking all around, her neck will move and immediately the bell will ring.....

....as soon as the bell rings,
we shall run away and hide
in our holes

All the rats appreciated the idea

That's absolutely perfect

After all the rats stopped talking one elder rat said....

But who will bell
the cat?

Hearing this question of that elder rat, everyone shut their mouths

MORAL :

One can have many bright ideas but can they be implemented?
